Corporate Governance Consulting Firm, XCEO Inc., Introduces Additional Features to Its Automated, Web-based, Corporate Board Evaluation System

SANTA CLARA, Calif./EWorldWire/July 29, 2010 --- Corporate governance consulting firm XCEO, Inc., has introduced additional features to its automated, Web-based, corporate board evaluation system.

Since 2003, the development of XCEO's Enlightened Corporate Governance Board Performance Evaluation Program has been led by Dr. Curtis J. Crawford, a Fortune 100 director with over two decades of corporate board experience. The purpose: deliver directors and boards a simple and powerful evaluation process that adds substantial value, is easy-to-use, and is readily available to accommodate all board evaluation needs; including evaluations for CEOs, committees and risk oversight.

With a deep understanding of the current evaluation processes in place for all aspects of board governance, and the ever-changing demands placed on boards, the XCEO team continues to refine and enhance the program to offer a premier, unique board-leadership-development solution. Some of the new functionality is highlighted below:

-Exercise administrators and result recipients are automatically notified within 24 hours of exercise completion. Automated reports for exercises are available for distribution to exercise participants immediately upon notification, significantly reducing administration time and cost for compiling and releasing results.

-Boards can add, remove or swap participant roles within their programs. There is ultimate flexibility for changing the roles of administrators, results recipients, committee chairman, and other assigned roles on the board as board composition and assignments change over time.

-Exercise completion time frames range from 45 to 90 days. This extension feature allows boards and directors to complete exercises depending on their scheduling needs.
